
ADVANCE MORTGAGE FUND UPDATE

12 November 2015

Background

The Advance Mortgage Fund (“the Fund”) was terminated effective 15 May 2012 and we have actively been returning all remaining capital to Investors of this fund, as cash becomes available.

We expect to make a payment equivalent to approximately 85% of Investors’ current account balance in the Fund by the end of November 2015. This amount will be paid in accordance with Investors’ current instructions.

Do investors need to do anything to receive the proceeds?

Investors are not required to take any action if they want the redemption proceeds to be paid as per current payment instructions. If investors’ bank account details have changed they will need to complete an amendment form to ensure proceeds can be paid directly to their account for future withdrawals. If they had previously provided bank account details, we will pay the proceeds into that account. Otherwise, a cheque will be posted to the address we have recorded on our registry.

When will investors receive their payments?

We expect to make a payment equivalent to approximately 85% of investors’ current account balance in the Fund by the end of November 2015. This amount will be paid in accordance with investor’s current instructions.

When will the fin-up of the Fund be complete?

At this stage we expect the wind-up process will be completed in 2016. However, due to factors outside our control, this date may change so we will continue to communicate with you about the progress of the termination throughout this period.
